LOVE AND HUNGER.

On the earth, that Round the sun in courses elliptic, Whirls with all her kindred planets,
 And her little silver sister, Next to Mary, Mary.

Many a wife,
 Ever active, away the people Till they sink into her bosom, From the frozen regions arctic,
 To the burning south.

Spirits potent,
 Governing with force tyrannic Envy, hatred, fraud, ambition, Hope and fear, despair and malice, These and many more.

But among them
 There are two whose power is greater, None, or high or low, escape them, Rich or poor, or wise or foolish—All they sway them all.

One is hunger,
 Pale and gaunt and much devouring, Daily he must do his service, Else he works us cruel mischief,
 And at length he kills.

Love the other,
 Beautiful and full of promise, Hope and joy are his attendants, Yet when scorned, despised, neglected, He brings evil too.

Love and hunger!
 These are two's most mighty rulers, Love the soul claims for his province, Hunger dominates the body, Both obeyed bring peace.

If their subjects Should defy, rebel against them, Like her sister, earth, a desert Waste, would tempt us to whirlwind Joyless round the sun.

AN INDIAN LEGEND.

A hundred years ago the immense deserts extending from the declivity of the Rocky mountains to Red river were peopled by numerous barbarous tribes, always at war with one another. The following is a little story related by an old missionary, who passed 30 years in the midst of those Indians of the northwest.

One day toward the end of the month of July, 18—, while the Black-feet were at war with the Crow tribes, and each was watching to surprise the other, 50 of the latter were scattered over the prairie gathering wild berries. Not suspecting the presence of their enemies in the neighborhood, they had dispersed themselves here and there without any anxiety in the places where the fruit most abounded. Their horses were fastened to trees, and the women, furnished with kettles, hurried with the fruit to the carts as soon as their vessels were filled.

They had been occupied about an hour at this work when suddenly a troop of armed horsemen appeared in the distance. The Crows were not long in ascertaining that they were Blackfeet coming to surprise and massacre them.

There was not a moment to lose.
 They left everything on the prairie which would impede their flight—fruit jars and all were left for the enemy. They thought only of saving their lives.

A young chief of this tribe, who had been married but a few months, had brought his wife with him. At the first cry of alarm he took her up in his arms and placed her on horseback behind him.

After going some miles the young chief's horse, tired with the weight of his double burden, began to slacken his pace. His rider did his best to urge him on, but in spite of his efforts he realized that the Blackfeet were perceptibly gaining ground on him.

He saw that he must fall into their hands if he tried to save his wife. What, then, was he to do?
 Should he abandon her on the prairie to become the prey of his enemies or fall with her rather than basely leave her to her fate.

Meanwhile the Blackfeet were coming. "I am going to place you on the ground," said he to his wife. "I am aware that you will be made a prisoner, but they will not kill you. It would be otherwise with me. You know the sort of death awaiting me if they seize me. Alone with my horse I have a better chance to escape and reach my camp. Once restored to my own people, I will raise a party of warriors, and we will go forth to rescue you from the camp of the Blackfeet. In four or five days you shall be set free."

Saying this, he removed his wife from the horse and put her down on the grass.

The horse, relieved of half his burden, resumed his course more swiftly, and the young Crow found himself beyond the reach of his enemies.
 Meanwhile his wife, captured by a Blackfoot, was conducted into the enemy's camp to be given as a present to the chief of the tribe.

Toward 3 o'clock in the afternoon all who had escaped from the Black-feet arrived in the Crow camp and related how they had avoided their murderous tomahawk and arrow.

The young chief in particular, who had only deserted his wife because he was certain that they would not kill her, and that he could deliver her, endeavored by his regal to gain their sympathy and urged his friends to join him in wreaking vengeance upon those who had attacked them so treacherously.

Immediately 30 young warriors, who burned with a desire to display their bravery by doing a deed worthy of praise from the old men of the tribe, pressed around him. The warwhoop resounded, and that very evening the avengers went in pursuit of the Blackfeet under cover of the night. They encamped on the banks of the Souris river. It was there at laybreak the Crow chief and his followers discovered them. At some distance from the camp there was a densely wooded thicket, where 50 men could easily hide themselves.

 They directed their course toward this place and there held council.

The chief decided that his companions should wait in this copse while he went to the bank of the river hard by the camp of the Blackfeet, where he hoped in the dim light of the dawn to discover some trace of his wife. On the bank of the river he sat down behind a bush and waited until the women came in the morning with their kettles to draw water.
 He hoped to see his wife go down to the river with the others and to have an opportunity to release her and return to his warriors before the day commenced.

He had been in this place for some minutes when he perceived the woman going down to the river. Unseen, he scanned those who passed by, hoping to discover his own. He was beginning to despair, when he saw one coming alone at some distance from the others. That one was his wife.
 He let her pass and go as far as the river, so as to make certain that he did not deceive himself. As she returned he left his hiding place and stood before her. Great was the surprise of this woman at the sight of her husband. He did not give her any time to question him. "Your brothers," said he to her, "are here with me, at a little distance on the prairie. I have only just left them in order to come and rescue you from your enemies. Let us save ourselves before the camp awakes and rejoin your own people."

"No," she replied, "I will not set out now. I must steal something from those people who made me a prisoner. Return to your warriors, and when nighttime has arrived I will escape from the Blackfeet's camp and rejoin you." In spite of the chief's entreaties she would not consent to follow him then.

He thereupon hastened away to await with his own people the time when his wife would leave the camp.
 The plan of this woman was not to rejoin her husband. She regarded his desertion of her as an insult, and she had sworn to be avenged should the opportunity offer. On perceiving her husband in the morning she had disguised her hatred, and the delay which she asked was simply a pretext to give her time to prepare the means of vengeance against him.

She left the river with her kettle filled with water and thoughtfully bent her course toward the lodge of the chief of the Blackfeet.

As soon as she had deposited her vessel she covered her head with her blanket, and assuming a mysterious air she sat down aside, as if greatly preoccupied with some extraordinary secret. To the questions of those who passed her by she gave no reply and preserved an absolute silence.

The chief, believing that she was ill or lamented her captivity, wished to console her and inquired the cause of her sadness.

"I had a curious dream last night," said she. "I saw my spirit, and it revealed to me a great thing. You shall see if it has deceived me. This is what it showed me. Some miles from this camp, in the thicket which you see yonder, there are 30 warriors of the Crow tribe who have been hiding since yesterday. They are waiting for a favorable opportunity to surprise and massacre us."

"Go and take them by surprise, in sufficient numbers, so that none of them escape. In order to accomplish this hasten to surround the wood on all sides. Kill all these warriors except their chief, whom you will bring to the camp, as I have something to say to him."

Indians, it is known, have unlimited faith in dreams. They are revelations to them. Nothing more was wanted to set the camp astir.

In no time all the warriors were assembled around their chief.

Meantime the woman's brothers and friends were waiting impatiently, but without anxiety.

The Blackfeet glided along like snakes in the grass and soon surrounded the wood where the Crows were hidden. At the given signal they were to jump up and run in the direction of the wood, while uttering their warwhoops.

At the first cry uttered by the Blackfeet chief a circle of men seemed to start up out of the ground, and it was impossible for the Crows to leave their hiding place. They perceived that they were betrayed, and that nothing more remained for them than to sell their lives dearly.

They made heroic efforts to open a path through the ranks of their enemies, but the Blackfeet, six times more numerous, killed them all, with the exception of the chief, whom they succeeded in taking alive, as his wife had directed. Him they tied to a post to await whatever torture the council decided to inflict upon him the following day.

His wife, to insult him in his misfortune, sat down in front of him.

Although it was the custom of Indians to suffer silently and preserve silence when condemned to death, this one could not resist reproaching his wife for her base treachery.

"What," said he, "do you still dare to look at me, monster in human shape, when you have just caused all your family to be massacred? Your brothers and mine have exposed their lives to come and deliver you from captivity, and you have treacherously betrayed them. You shall not long enjoy your vengeance. The Great Spirit shall cause to fall on you the punishment your crime merits."

The chief of the Blackfeet, not understanding the language of the Crows, asked the woman what the prisoner was saying to her.

"He demands that you cause him to suffer a good deal in order to put his courage to the proof before all your camp, and for that purpose he wishes you to pour boiling water over his head." The Blackfoot was somewhat astonished at such a request.
 However, he hastened to carry out the supposed desire of the prisoner, believing that this boasting was done with the design of insulting him, so he took a kettle of boiling water and poured it slowly onto the head of his victim.

"He is satisfied," the prisoner's wife said to the Blackfoot. "Continue to water him. He says that you do him good."

When she thought the scalding which he had received would inevitably cause death, she said to the chief of the Blackfeet:

"Now he desires that you leave him tied to this post to die of hunger."

"As he wishes it," replied the chief.
 "We are going to move the camp for fear that your people may come to search for those whom we have massaced, so we will leave the prisoner at his post to die of hunger, according to his desire."

There was an old woman in the camp of the Blackfeet that was rejected by the others. She had a small lodge all to herself, and when the others stopped at any place she pitched her tent at some distance from the camp. She took pity on the prisoner, and when she saw the camp set out she herself folded up her little tent of hide and went forth slowly behind the rest. As they did not appear to trouble themselves about her, she retraced her steps. Without being observed by any of her people she cut the bands which bound the prisoner to the post. She also gave him a knife, a little food and a piece of linen to cover his head. So soon as the prisoner saw himself free, he set out, notwithstanding his scalding burns, to regain the dwellings of his own people. Weakened by suffering, it took him three days to reach the camp of the Crows, where they were anxiously awaiting the return of their warriors.

To make a deep impression on his people, he did not enter their camp immediately, but remained at some distance uttering groans. Then, seating himself on the ground, he tearfully related the sad fate of his warriors, brought about by the infamous treachery of his wife.

Early the following day all the men among the Crows capable of fighting were en route to overtake the Blackfeet.

The latter had prudently pitched camp three days' distance from where they had left their prisoner, so it was only after six days' march that the Crows reached them. They halted at a sufficient distance, not to be discovered by their enemies, and concealed themselves in a large, dry ravine.

The Crow chief warned his people to do their best to preserve the life of the old Indian woman who had taken pity on him. In regard to his wife, they were ordered to take her alive if it were possible.

Before going to the assault one of the chiefs of the expedition desired to visit the camp in order to discover these two personages.

At 10 o'clock at night, when the fires were burning low and the men had gone into their lodges for the night, he enveloped himself in a blanket and boldly entered the camp of the Blackfeet. He had no difficulty in recognizing the chief's lodge.

It was there that he discovered her whom he was ordered to take alive. He soon found also the lodge of the good old woman at the extremity of the camp. She was seated before a little fire, wrapped in her blanket. He approached her and said: "I take pity on you, you who have had commiseration on one of our people. You saved him. Well, I intend likewise to save you. In some minutes all my people will be here to massacre this camp. None can escape, for we are too numerous.
 If you desire to avoid death, follow me, and I will place you in safety.
 Come quickly, for my warriors are advancing."

The Crow chief assisted her to carry away her little lodge as far as the ravine.

As soon as she was sheltered from danger the Crow chief gave the signal for the attack. The Blackfeet, buried in sleep, had not time to seize any arms to defend themselves. The Crows, relying upon their numbers, had dispersed themselves in all parts of the camp so as to fall upon each lodge simultaneously. The combat was short, but the massacre general.
 Not one of the Blackfeet saved his life. The woman alone, who had betrayed the Crows, fell into their hands alive.

Now it was their turn for vengeance. "This was what the chief decided."

"Collect," said he, "all the poles of the lodges to make a wood pile, tie the hands and feet of this traitress and burn her."

THE SUPERVISORS.

Cost of Keeping Roads in Repair.—The Indigent List Increasing.

The Board of Supervisors met in regular monthly session last Monday.

The Road Commissioners bills were first taken up, and considering the hard winter that we have passed through, which has been very destructive to public highways, the bills presented for keeping the roads in a passable condition were not as large as anticipated by taxpayers. The following were the expenses for keeping the roads in repair during the month of February:

Ocean road district, $253.15; Fort Ross, $82; Redwood, $180.33; Occidental, $37; Stewart's Point, $232.124; Knights Valley, $77.15; Cloverdale, $108.33; Healdsburg, $111.15; Washington, $179.50; Forestville, $156.35; Sebastopol, $175.02; Marin, $234.324; Petaluma, $710.52; Sonoma, $420.36; Penn's Grove, $162.02; Lakeview, $39.50; Santa Rosa, $190.40; Fulton, $971.20.

After allowing the above bills the Supervisors awarded the following amounts to indigent persons, who through old age, sickness and misfortune have become public charges of the county. It will be observed that the list has been steadily increasing the past few months owing, no doubt, to the prevailing hard times:

Elizabeth Andrews, $8; Bessie Allen, $5; Mrs. M. J. Buckner, $5; Peter Bruner, $5; Mrs. Alice Bee, $8; David Berlin, $8; Lena Berg, $5; Caroline Bremer, $5; Nancy W. Bray, $8; Mrs. Bridget Baume, $8; Mrs. Selene Cook, $8; James Carr, $5; Joaquin Carillo, $8; Wm. T. Cromwell, $8; Pat Curry, $8; M. L. From Sonoma Grammar School.

Oh! the people of the High School, Who opinions wish to hear, From the districts which surround them, From their neighbors far and near.

Talk of gall, but our dear High School Beats the record for that same; Far-renowned it is for gall, sirs, Learning ne'er will bring it fame.

Seldom do I write in rhyme, sirs, Or, at least, an effort make; But when e'er I do attempt it, From the High School goes the cake.

Now, my "Puer Scholae Altus," Old San Luis beats you fine; Tell us what, you just ain't in it, When it comes to writing rhyme.

Cause by us you have been fired, You've gotten in a little spite; Although you have the College hired, Still you seem to like the fight.

In your long list of invitations, Which to neighboring schools you sent, In leaving out your once loved colleague, You tried your enmity to vent.

But we are here, as you may see, Because not told to stay away; And if we hear much more from you, We'll write some more another day.

AN EIGHTH GRADER.

San Luis Pupil to "Puer Scholae Altus."

Bright pupil of the Sonoma High School, Your poetry is not bad, Even if writing verses is all the fad; Your's doesn't come up to the poetical rule, Nor do I profess to do any better.

Attending only a district school.

Why shouldn't your girls beat our's all hollow?

When they are represented in twice our number.

One lass from San Luis, you say, but I say two.

And they can hold their own among the smartest of you.

Ask your Professor if they are not smart, And he'll say yes, with all his heart.

Our boys are all complaining, And say it wasn't fair.

To say so much about their actions there; But you say if the boys had been "in it," I would have made a better hit.

So I think poetry writing I had better quit; And you, bright lad, for such you must be, Since you spoke only of girls in your witty poetry.

Why don't you include the boys when you write? Then your poem would shine in a better light.

SCHOLAR.

According to Bonfort's wine and spirit circular Italy is the greatest wine-producing country in the world.

"her annual production amounting on an average to 675,000,000 gallons." France and Spain come next, each with about 616,000,000 gallons.

The combined production of Austria and Hungary each year is some 215,600,000 gallons; that of Portugal, 132,000,000; Russia, 73,700,000; Greece, 57,000,000; Roumania, 53,600,000; Germany, 51,700,000; Bulgaria, 49,676,000 and Turkey, 28,886,000.

Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism, but it can be done if the proper treatment is adopted, as was seen by the following from Jas. Lambert of New Brunswick, Ill.:

"I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days. I am all right to-day and would insist on every one who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once." 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers.

HEART DISEASE 30 YEARS.

GRAND ISLAND, NEB., April 6th, 1892.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

GENTLEMEN: I had been troubled with heart disease for the last 30 years, and although I was treated by able physicians and tried many remedies, I grew steadily worse until I was completely prostrated and confined to my bed without any hope of recovery. I would have very bad sink and sleep and my body was altogether.

It was with the greatest difficulty that my circulation could be kept at all, and it was with the greatest difficulty that I could get up to do a single day's work for a man 68 years of age. I gave Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure all the credit for my recovery. It is over six months since I have taken any, although I keep a bottle in the house in case I should need it. I have also used your NERVE AND LIVER PILLS, and think a great deal of them.

Blood Poisoned After Typhoid Fever

A Marvelous Cure by Hood's After All Else Failed.

Mrs. Phebe L. Hall.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:"

"Dear Sirs: Twenty-five years ago I had a bilious fever, and later it turned into typhoid fever, and for five weeks I lay like one dead, but at last I pulled through and got up around. I soon discovered, on my left leg just above the knee a small brown spot about as big as a three cent piece, which puffed up but did not hurt me or feel sore. I did not pay any attention to it until two years after, when it commenced to spread and have the appearance of a rice worm. It itched and burned and I commenced doctoring, but to no avail. I Got Only Momentary Relief, And sometimes not even that. I could not sleep nights, and on account of the itching I scratched the spot until the blood would run. In hot weather my elbows and all my joints were just the same, and what I have suffered I cannot describe with a pen. Last February I tried an herb for the blood and it broke out in the worst form of a rash all over my body. I began my searching, and soles would fall off. The sores continued to discharge and I longed to die. Finally my husband bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and I had not taken more than half of it before I began to change for the better. I have had four bottles.

Now I Am All Well but two little spots on my leg. I can now sleep and eat well and work all the time. I am 54 years old, and the mother of eleven children, and I think I can do as much as any one my age. My son has also taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia, and has been greatly benefited by it. I feel very grateful for the benefit I receive from Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. PHEBE L. HALL, Galva, Kansas.

THE HIGH SCHOOL QUESTION.

What the Teachers Have to Say on the Subject.

The following communication was read before the High School Board of Trustees at a regular meeting held last Monday:

HON. BOARD OF TRUSTEES—Gentlemen:

Allow us, as teachers of the Sonoma Valley Union High School, to call your attention to a few cold facts concerning our school, and to suggest what we consider absolutely necessary for the best possible future of the Sonoma Valley Union High School. We feel that we are better able to suggest than those more remotely connected with the school.

We opened school July 31st, 1893, with an attendance of twenty-one. Since that time two students have entered the State University on examination, one has moved away, two found the work too difficult and consequently dropped out, one left on account of sickness, and one entered recently, making sixteen regular students now enrolled.

On February 21st, 1894, we moved into our present quarters, and notwithstanding the many predictions to the contrary we have yet those sixteen regular students more zealous, if possible than before, and ready to fight, if need be, for our High School. Now, while we are comfortably situated and have pleasant rooms and plenty of them, there is that momentous question which has confronted this High School ever since it was first organized nearly three years ago: Are the Trustees going to buy the college? Is it going to be moved to El Verano? Are they going to buy a lot and build? What is going to become of our High School anyhow? Is it going to die? Can the patrons vote it down, etc.?

You yourselves can see that such a state of affairs only tends to keep the teachers from attaining the best results, to crush the interest and anticipation of the students, and to cause the community in general to become indifferent and allow a High School so hampered to die. Now, while we realize the responsibility that rests upon your shoulders, and how utterly impossible it is to please everybody, we also fully realize how very important it is that something should be done now to settle Sonoma's High School question.

While for many reasons we would not advocate buying the college and fitting it up for High School purposes, yet if the Board in their judgment think it the best that can be done, we as teachers of the school will stand in and do all in our power to make it a success.

During the preceding school year every time this question was brought before the Board some one made a motion to lay it over until the end of the school year as there would then be a new Board; or, some one else would suggest laying the whole question aside until the summer vacation, as the work of building could then be carried on without hindrance to the school.

Now, as a rule, we have but six weeks vacation in the summer, and in six weeks what can any School Board do toward calling a meeting, deciding upon a location, advertising for plans, reviewing the same and finally erecting the building?

Suppose the Board should decide to buy a lot and put up a suitable building, and we sincerely hope you will so decide, if you should begin now it would take till next summer to make all the necessary arrangements.

Judging from the number of students enrolled in the 8th grade of the various Grammar Schools included in the Sonoma Valley Union High School District, we feel safe in saying that if proper steps are now taken the school will open at the beginning of the new school year with an attendance of between thirty and forty students and will continue to grow.

Hoping that you will not think this an intrusion upon your rights and believing that after due consideration of the above you will agree with us, we are

Yours very truly,

A. C. ABSHIRE,
GEORGIA REED,
Teachers.

A New Enterprise.

Julius Fochetti, one of Sonoma's most enterprising citizens, started up his new feed mills this week, and is now prepared to furnish on short notice and at living prices ground feed of all kinds in any quantity desired. The motive power of the mill, which has just been completed, is run by a powerful gasoline engine. The establishment of this mill in Sonoma will prove a great accommodation to our farmers and will save them money as well.

GALLANT RESCUE.

Five People Saved from a Watery Grave off Tiburon.

One day last week while the steamer Santa Monica, in charge of Capt. W. B. Pless of this place, was on her way to San Francisco from McGill's station on Sonoma Creek, a heavy wind arose as the craft entered San Francisco Bay, which, with the tide running in an opposite direction, made the waters very rough. While off Tiburon the Captain happened to look in the direction of the Raccoon Straits and about a mile distant he observed a whitehall boat, in which were seated five persons—two young women and three men. The craft was water-logged and was being buffeted about by the wind and tide, and the occupants were perfectly powerless to help themselves while drifting rapidly out to sea. Captain Pless hastily went to their rescue and with considerable difficulty succeeded in getting all five safely on board his steamer. The ladies in the party were drenched to the skin by the waves which had been breaking over the small craft for over an hour and all were half dead from cold and fright. It was just at nightfall when the rescue was made and had it not been for the timely aid rendered by the Captain there would have been another drowning accident on the bay.

After making all hands comfortable the Captain landed them safely in San Francisco.

The parties are well-known in that city, where all reside. It was the old story. They had been out on a pleasure trip and the boat, being in unskilled hands, became unmanageable when the blow came on.

Midwinter Fair Information.

Quite a number of people throughout the country have the impression that the admission paid at the gate for the Midwinter Fair does not admit party to all the Fair buildings, but that a separate charge is assessed afterward for admission to some of the principal buildings of the Fair, as well as the county buildings.

This is erroneous. The impression seems to have been derived from an article published some weeks ago, giving an estimate of the cost of an individual to visit the side-shows on the fair grounds. The admission at the gate entitles a person to the privileges of all the Fair buildings and the grounds except some side-shows, or concessions as they are called. These are not a part of the Fair, but are entertainments, for which the owners pay for exhibiting inside the Fair grounds. They can be visited or not as a person selects.

The Fair is now in most excellent shape and fully worthy of a visit. It is, indeed, a most magnificent display of the products of California. Besides there are a great number of foreign exhibits, which attracted so much attention at Chicago. The Midwinter Fair has gone beyond the expectations of all. The buildings are splendid specimens of architecture, and the adornment of the grounds is most elaborate. There are many attractions, prominent among which are the electric tower and electric fountain. The latter is a wonder in itself.

The following is a list of buildings under the direct auspices of the Midwinter Fair Commission to which a person paying admission at the gate is entitled to free entry. Many days can be spent with profit and pleasure in these buildings:

Administration, Agricultural and Horticultural, Alameda County, Anne Hathaway's Cottage, Canadian, Central Court including Electric Tower, Fountains and gardens, Chocolate pavilion, Concert stand, Iowa and Midwinter Fair Bands, Festival Hall, Fine Arts, German Tavern, Humboldt County, Manufactures, Marine Cafe, (fish on exhibition, cooked to order), Mechanical Arts, Monterey County, Northern California, Oregon, San Joaquin County, San Mateo County, Santa Clara County, Santa Cruz County, Southern California, Taber's photographic, Vienna Prater with yodlers and round tables, Yaqui Pottery Makers.

In addition there are forty-one side-shows, to which admission fee is charged.

Arrangements have been made by High School Principal Abshire with Prof. Slate of the State University to visit Sonoma at an early date and address those interested in educational matters on topics connected with the common interests of schools and universities.

The professor's address will partake more of an informal talk than a lecture, and will, no doubt, prove very interesting. The gentleman is at the head of the Department of Physics in the University and will shortly examine the science work of our High School. It is to be hoped that the result of these examinations will be to put the school upon the accredited list and thus make it take rank among the leading High Schools of the State.

THE CITY TRUSTEES.

Old Water Rates Adopted—An Election for City Officers Ordered.

The City Trustees met in regular monthly session last Wednesday evening, Trustees Seipp, Trudgen and Schocken being present and Trustees Weyl and Litzius absent.

The application of Mrs. Jas. Martin to have $6 for a burial permit refunded to her was denied.

Fifteen dollars were appropriated for repairing Fifth-street East. Twenty dollars were appropriated for Second-street East.

The Clerk of the Board was instructed to notify C. F. Leiding to have the drain pipe underneath the sidewalk in front of the Toscano Hotel flushed out.

The report of the Sonoma Water Works was read and accepted. The following resolution was introduced by Trustee Schocken and adopted:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Board that the rates of water furnished to the City of Sonoma and the inhabitants thereof for the twelve months to commence July 1st, 1894, shall be the same as charged the preceding year, and that the City Clerk draw an ordinance in conformity with this resolution.

The following resolutions were introduced by Trustee Seipp and adopted:

Resolved, That the City Clerk is hereby instructed and authorized to publish the notice of the general municipal election to be held at Sonoma city on the 9th day of April, 1894, as required by law, and to furnish all the necessary election supplies and to make all the necessary preparations for said election.

Resolved, That the following-named electors are hereby appointed officers and clerks of said election, to-wit: Inspectors—A. J. Van Every, M. Muldry, Judges—D. M. Eschbach, E. Gillan. Clerks of Election—O. W. Brown, J. B. Small. Ballot Clerks—Louis Breitenbach, T. A. Nufer.

V. Bulotti's request to dig a ditch on Spain street in front of his property for the purpose of drainage was referred to the Street Committee.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

H. C. Calderwood, balance due, $35; G. W. Sparks, salary, $15; A. J. Van Every, street work, $32; D. Valente, street work, $11.50; Wm. Green, lumber, $21.38; J. P. Weems, street work, $15; A. Reimuth, labor, $4; John Revie, street work, $10; J. D. Wagon, street work, $12.50; Geo. Spanning, cleaning fire apparatus, $5. Total, $128.73.

City Election.

The election for municipal officers in this city, which takes place on Monday, April 9th, promises to be a lively one. So far five candidates have filed their certificates of nomination for City Trustee, three for Marshal, one for Treasurer, and one for Clerk. As several days more are allowed in which to make nominations the chances that other citizens ambitious to serve their country will materialize. Party lines will be completely obliterated in the coming contest and it will be a sort of go-as-you-please combat. We now take it that this is a fitting time to suggest to candidates, particularly those running for City Trustee and Town Marshal, to make known to the public what they are in favor of and what they are against in the management of municipal affairs. If this is done there will be more harmony between tax-payers and those to whom they will entrust the management of the city's affairs for the next two years. If this is not done the new Board will be hampered as the old Board, the people will be dissatisfied, public improvements retarded, and the devil will be to pay generally. Gentlemen, get in and declare yourselves.

Bitten by a Savage Bull-Dog.

Benj. L. Cook, the well-known stage driver, was severely bitten by a savage bull dog in the Union Livery Stables last Monday. Mr. Cook, upon entering the stable, saw the dog tied in a stall and pointed his finger at him. The animal immediately grabbed him by the hand and had it not been for the assistance of several bystanders Mr. Cook would undoubtedly have had the member chewed off.
